United People Movement Against Representation Taboo

Did you know that:

1. Legal Representation by barristers and solicitors is a $7.7 billion industry per year in Australia.
2. Solicitors and Barristers don't want to lose their monopoly on legal representation. Many want the whole cake. They use the lame argument of "your best interests" as the reason why they must keep the monopoly.
3. Most solicitors & barristers are more concerned about getting your money, than re-presenting your interests.
4. You have a right to appoint your friend or associate to represent you and/or assist you in your legal matters. Your right exists pursuant to: Natural Law; Common Law; Bible Codified Common Law; Statute Law (e.g. Instruments Act 1958 (Vic). Power of Attorneys Act (Qld) etc).
5. Any one of these laws by itself is sufficient for you to appoint a person (attorney) of your choice, even if that person is not a member of the legal bar or a solicitor.
6. When a parking, speeding or road toll fine is wrong, most people don't bother to defend it because they don't feel confident or because they don't have time or because solicitors and barristers are too costly
7. Whether or not your friend or associate who has gained experience at law, in say parking or speeding fines can represent you in your fine is up to the random whim or discretion of the magistrates or judge. This is the same all around Australia.
8. Most people would prefer to be represented in court by their friend or associate whom they know and trust.
9. Most people do not want to leave representation to the random whim or discretion of a magistrate or judge.
10. Denial of representation is against section 51 xx1v, s116 and s117 of The Australian Federal Constitution and is unconstitutional.
11. Some government officials desperately wish to change our present constitution because of the many protections that it provides for us, and because our constitution stops them from achieving their evil goals.
12. Our Federal Constitution says that we the people are the supreme authority above our parliaments. With a class action of more than 500 electors from at least 4 states, the will of the electors can easily prevail upon the supreme courts of the states and upon the parliament.
13. When Magistrates and Judges decide to deny to you the representative of your choice, which is your Right of Representation under common law, their decision can be put under Judicial Review.
